Record of Secretary Stanton

In a speech at the American Institute Fair in New York, on the 12th of September, General Sickles, once a prominent Democratic politician of that city, but a true patriot from the commencement, thus spoke of the noble record of Secretary Stanton:

Here let me pause to pay a tribute to one upon whom, more than upon any other public servant, has rested the vast and various responsibilities which the conduct of our great war imposed. When the rebellion declared itself, toward the close of the Administration of President Buchanan, an eminent lawyer, who had neither held office, nor been conspicuous as a partisan in politics, was called into the Cabinet as attorney general. His presence was instantly felt in the vigorous measures taken to enforce the authority of the Government. At the critical moment which followed the evacuation of Fort Sumter, when it seemed as if the Government would yield to the audacity and vigor of revolutionary pressure, his fearless counsels and indomitable will, his sturdy loyal nature, contributed mainly to that modification of the pacific policy of President Buchanan which was followed by measures to resist the further aggressions of insurgents. Toward evening, on one of the gloomy days in the winter of 1861, the Attorney General sent for one of the Representatives in Congress from New York, and informed him that, unless the public opinion of the North was instantly manifested, the President would yield to the demand of South Carolina and order Major Anderson back from Sumter to Moultrie. It was decided at once that an envoy should go to the principal Northern cities and announce that the President had decided to maintain Anderson in Sumter at all hazards. "Fire some powder," said Stanton; "all we can do yet is to fire some blank cartridges; a thousand bullets or a bale of hemp would save us from a bloody rebellion; the President will not strike a blow, but he will resist if he sees the temper of the people demands resistance; go and fire some cannon and let the echoes come to the White House." The next day salutes were fired in New York, Philadelphia, Albany and other cities in honor of President Buchanan's determination to sustain the gallant Anderson; congratulatory telegrams were sent from prominent men in all those cities to the President; the corporate authorities of New York passed earnest resolutions of support; several journals, in leading articles of remarkable power, endorsed and commended the decision of the President. The next day the decision was made. The demand of South Carolina for the evacuation of Fort Sumter was refused; it remained only for the South to secede or make war. President Lincoln was inaugurated; war followed. The Attorney General of President Buchanan became, after a brief interval, the War Minister of President Lincoln. His electric influence was instantly felt throughout the army, and all over the country. Commanding Generals were ordered to put columns in motion and attack the enemy. The irresolution and lethargy which are inseparable from defensive policy vanished before the universal initiative inspired by a positive and earnest character, who would neither rest himself nor allow the enemies of his country to rest while the means of attack were in his hands. Alternating successes and defeats—colossal yet indecisive combats—enormous consumption of treasure—the probability of foreign recognition and aid to the confederation—increasing hostility to the measures of the Administration, finally culminating in sedition, riots and revolts—the defiant overtures of aid and comfort to the enemy from public journals and public men—these were some of the accumulating embarrassments that brought the Union cause to the crisis of overthrow. The dauntless heart of the iron Secretary, himself the object of measureless obloquy and hate, never failed. To despair he opposed resolution; to a defeated army he sent a more successful General; to the mobs he spoke from the mouths of cannons; insolent spies and traitors within our lines were silenced and secured in the dungeons of the Old Capitol, or within the ponderous walls of Lafayette and Warren. The President was of all men, gentle and conciliatory. The Secretary of State was absorbed in the unparalleled difficulties of our foreign relations. The Secretary of the Treasury was laboriously directing all the currents of national wealth into his exhausted exchequer. The Secretary of the Navy was building and manning his fleets. The Attorney General never emerged from the mazes of his briefs. It was necessary, nay, it was vital that the undefined and illimitable powers of Government, for its own preservation, should be wielded by a bold, honest and skillful hand; by that spontaneous concession of authority accorded to a self reliant and commanding character. In all great emergencies, it developed upon Edwin M. Stanton, in the darkest hours of danger, to see that the Republic suffered no detriment. At times when the idea was tolerated that any citizen, during the war, might assail the Government as he pleased, and with impunity, it became necessary to silence sedition and baffle treason by terror. It was fortunate that the Government possessed a man, armed with power to enforce his will, who inspired fear enough to inspire doubtful authority. Not Richelieu himself, when France had no hiding place that could conceal, or power that could save his victims, was more dreaded than an order of arrest signed by the Secretary of War after the writ of habeas corpus was suspended. Whatever may be the final judgment of jurists upon the legal questions involved in these arrests, the effect was salutary. Traitors, fraudulent contractors, spies, dishonest officials in the service, at length felt there was somebody in authority to be afraid of.

We gather the following items from the Nanaimo Gazette:

The smoke flue of the furnace attached to the small engine in Douglas Pit accidentally caught fire on Thursday last. Some alarm was felt at the time lest the fire should communicate with the coal with which it was in dangerous proximity to, but it was prevented and the flames extinguished ere any material injury was done.

A bore intended to pierce both the Douglas and Newcastle seams of coal is about to be commenced this week by the Vancouver Coal Mining Company, preparatory to sinking a deep pit.

It is a sad commentary on the enterprise of the colony as well as on the enterprise of the London directors of the Vancouver Coal Company, to be, with our inexhaustible coal seams, unable to meet more than a tithe of the San Francisco demand. Nanaimo has no more adequate means to-day of extracting the coal from her mines than she had when her export trade was limited to what a single ship could carry away; and yet there are in her harbor two steamers, four full rigged ships, two barks, one brigantine, five schooners and two sloops, making in all sixteen vessels. A by no means insignificant cause of the trifling character of the demand in previous years was the inadequate capacity for taking out the mineral. With all our drawbacks in the absence of reciprocity, we should have still had a considerable export trade with California had we only shown the ability to take advantage of it.

PUGET SOUND.—From various sources we obtain the following items of interest from the Puget Sound region:

On the evening of Oct. [illegible] at Seattle, a ball was given to the officers of the United States steamer Saginaw, which passed off as pleasantly as "smiling beauty and sparkling wine" could make it.

The Olympia Standard learns that the committee appointed to procure homes for Mr. Mercer's party of young ladies has reported that eighty can be provided for in that county.

The King County Agricultural Society will hold a Fair at Seattle on the 11th. The Gazette says the fair will have a tendency to advance the interests of the various occupations of King county, a thing much needed as will be seen by the paragraph following: "Our greatest need now is farmers and a spirit of progress infused into those already here. When we have vast tracts of fertile lands and an almost boundless range for cattle, we are importing grain, flour and cattle to supply the home consumption. Scarcely a week passes in which one or more vessels do not arrive from San Francisco with flour and grain for this market, and everything the farmer raises meets with quick sale at remunerative prices. In view of these facts, too much importance cannot be attached to anything calculated to awaken interest and impart enterprise in this direction."

From the British Possessions

Late Victoria and British Columbia papers have been received. The Colonist, of Oct. 10th, has the following:

An attempt is being made in political circles to create a belief that there is now a considerable reaction in favor of a free port policy to the exclusion of all other interests. This we distinctly and emphatically deny. It is a transparent dodge, and we venture the further assertion that should a general election take place, there will be a return of at least twenty five per cent. more members to the House, or, in other words, fifteen members opposed to that suicidal and untenable policy.

The announcement that a Port of Entry had been established at Skidegate Bay, Queen Charlotte Island, to obviate the necessity of vessels having to proceed to New Westminster to clear, is altogether a fabrication. The erection of fortified works to resist the dreaded invasion of a handful of Siwashes is also denied.

The schooner Onward, Capt. McKay, has returned from Queen Charlotte Island with the party who were recently sent by a private company to prospect for further deposits of anthracite coal. As far as we can learn the result of the enterprise has not been very satisfactory.

We are indebted to Mr. W. V. Brown, one of the party of prospectors under Capt. Torrens, who recently returned from prospecting for gold at Nootka Sound, for a most interesting relic of the visit of the great English Navigator, Capt. James Cook, to the western coast of this island. On the prospectors leaving Guyanina Arm, in Nootka Sound, in a whale boat to return to Victoria, it appears that they camped for the night in Resolution Inlet (so called from the name of Capt. Cook's ship); while here the party discovered a cluster of well made bricks, which had evidently been earthed over for many years, but had been left bare by the heavy rains that had fallen. From inquiries made of the natives, our informant says they gathered, that many years ago, according to the statements of their forefathers, a number of King George men had visited the inlet, and remained there some time, and that it was those early visitors who had there left traces of civilization. The bricks were probably used for building a chimney for a blacksmith's forge, as we read in the narrative of Cook's voyages that the Resolution and Discovery went into this inlet in March, 1778, and underwent repairs; Capt. Cook and his officers being engaged in the meantime in visiting every part of the Sound, trading with the Indians and making scientific observations. One of the bricks found by Capt. Torren's party, has been kindly added to our cabinet, where it may be seen. It is washed smooth by the action of the water, and has become nearly petrified.

FOOTE IN FAVOR OF NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—Ex-Governor H. S. Foote, of Mississippi, now living in Tennessee, writes to the Cincinnati Inquirer:

As to slavery, every man of sense knows that it is as dead as those who have been sleeping in their graves for a thousand years. In relation to what shall be the future condition of those who have been once slaves but are now freemen, let every man judge for himself. For the reasons heretofore given, and which I will not now repeat, I prefer to end our troubles at once by granting the right of the suffrage. Whatever plausible objections may be presented to this measure, for one I prefer it to the longer continuation of the present distressing condition of affairs. I desire the early disbanding of the armies now occupying Southern territory. I desire the perfect and speedy restoration of civil authority everywhere. I desire the immediate representation of all the States in the South in the national Legislature, and having good reason to believe that these benefits will not be accorded to us until African suffrage is consented to, I am prepared to make the experiment at once. Should it fail, after a fair trial, we will be able to withdraw the right with the full consent of the civilized world. Hoping not to be compelled to discuss this subject again, and being prepared to acquiesce cheerfully in whatever a majority of my fellow citizens of Tennessee may deem most wise and desirable, I have the honor to be, your fellow-citizen.

H. S. FOOTE.

THE REBEL GENERAL CHEATHAM.—The following is the application of General Cheatham for pardon. It is manly and soldier-like:

You know me, Mr. President—who I am and what I have done. I am sorry; and if you will pardon me, I will be a good citizen henceforward. And if there is any more fighting to be done, count me in whenever I may be needed.

U. S. Marshal's Notice.
District of Oregon—ss.

WHEREAS, an information has been filed in the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon on the 23d day of September, A. D. 1865, by J. N. Dolph, Esq., District Attorney, on behalf of the United States against "One Box of Cigars," alleging in substance that the said goods were on or about the 20th day of May, 1865, landed at the port of Portland, in said District, from the ship or vessel George S. Wright, (the same being a ship or vessel then just arrived from the foreign port of Victoria, V. I.,) without a permit from the Collector of Customs for said District, and praying process against said goods, and that the same be declared forfeited to the United States of America.

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the warrant under the seal of said Court, to me directed and delivered, I do hereby give public notice to all persons claiming said goods or in any manner interested therein, that they be and appear before the said District Court, to be held in the city of Portland on Monday, the 6th day of November, A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, then and there to interpose their claims, and make their allegations in that behalf.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

TUESDAY MORNING OCTOBER 17, 1865

DIVIDE AND GOVERN.—The Democratic party anxious to regain power, has adopted the old Machiavelian policy "divide et impera," and its leaders predict that within a few months, perhaps weeks, the great Union party of the republic will have fallen to pieces. Vain delusion. Never were those who desire to strengthen and advance the United States more unanimous in their support of the Administration than they now are, neither after having vanquished rebels in arms do they intend to quarrel among themselves. The only question upon which there is any difference of opinion, says the Washington correspondent of the Sacramento Union, is that of negro suffrage, and that will be amicably adjusted before Christmas. While President Johnson maintains that the Constitution of the United States does not confer upon the Federal Government the right to interfere with the right of suffrage in any State, he believes that the right should be extended to all educated men, no matter what may be their ancestry, and to none other. Depend upon it the suffrage question will be amicably settled.

Meanwhile the Union men of the loyal States are perfectly right in fully and freely discussing the future course to be pursued. Senator Sumner, presiding over the State Convention of Massachusetts, takes advanced grounds, and demands security for the future, with "justice to the colored race as the sheet anchor of the national debt." The State Conventions of Minnesota and of Wisconsin took different views of the suffrage question, and we see Weed and Greeley keeping up their personal broil. But after full and free discussion, States and individuals will be found true to the great cause of human freedom, and will keep the stars and stripes waving in glorious triumph. It is also a great consolation to know that President Johnson publicly declares his entire confidence in the professions of the repentant Southerners, and his belief that they conscientiously intend to peacefully return to their allegiance. Those Democrats who are striving to divide and to destroy the Union party will again meet with a disgraceful defeat.

MANUFACTURES ON THE PACIFIC COAST.—The third volume of the Census returns of 1860 is now in press, and gives much information about the mining and manufacturing interests of the country. The States and Territories on the Pacific coast had, Establishments, 6,777; capital invested, $23,380,334; cost of raw material, $18,483,627; hands employed (male), 60,137; hands employed (female), 67; cost of labor, $20,037,540; annual value of products, $71,219,989. Of this last sum the products of gold mining were $45,927,333.

DEATH OF HANNAH F. GOULD.—This lady died at Newburyport, Mass., on the 5th of September. She was born near the close of last century, at Lawrence in that State. She is known as the author of many pleasing verses, which, though not marked by genius nor inspired by what the great Wordsworth called "the vision and the faculty divine," are, nevertheless, distinguished by true thought, refined and tender emotions, and a calm and pure moral tone. Everyone remembers "The Snow storm," "The Pebble," and others of her beautiful and pleasing poems.

OWYHEE NEWS.—Horse-stealing has become very common around Owyhee, and it is believed that the whites are alone responsible for it. The adulteration of gold dust is producing a lively discussion about the means of procuring coin to use in general business operations, and particularly to pay laborers in the mines. Public meetings have been held to devise means to abate the evil.

INDIAN FIGHT.—Captain Williams' company of nineteen men of the Oregon Infantry had a fight with about seventy-five Indians near Harney Lake, Sept. 25th. Thos. Smith, son of Captain John Smith, of Linn county, and another private named Griffin, were wounded. Two Indians were reported killed.

THE SALT LAKE MAIL.—We are in receipt of papers from Salt Lake, Utah, of October 4th. The mail bringing them came via Boise City and the Columbia river, making the time in twelve days. The Denver Colorado News of Sept. 27th is also received.

GOVERNMENT LAND.—Six townships surveyed in Umatilla county by Mr. Odell are now open to pre-emption or occupation under the homestead law, as the surveys have been approved.

The democracy of Montana are about to start a paper. The material of the Salt Lake Valley Tan has been bought for that purpose.

GROSS RECEIPTS.—The Review says the gross receipts at the late State Fair were over $8,000.

HENRY A. WISE AN ORIGINAL ABOLITIONIST!—Henry A. Wise recently wrote a letter to General Grant, in which he says:

If General Terry believed in consolidation, I believed in State rights and powers. If he believed that the Federal Executive and Congress and the Judiciary possessed absolute, I believe they had only relative and delegated sovereignty. If he believed that they were unchecked and unbalanced by other powers, I believed that the whole system of the United States, State and Federal, was composed of reciprocal checks and balances, and that the sovereign States were the basis, checks and balances of the Federal Government. I was taught that the States were not unum but e pluribus unum, and this many in one, one in many. When called a rebel I shall point to the —— of Virginia's buckler and claim that my sovereign State is sole sponsor for the acts of her own citizens and subjects. I am no rebel nor traitor, and never was, and my State cannot be either. She has still a sovereignty by the Constitution of the United States, and by the original authority before it ever existed, unless she is utterly demolished by subjugation, and unless that is destroyed by any force which has demolished her.

These are still the tenets of my faith, and I believe these truths will perpetually revive and prevail to preserve the republican freedom of the people of the United States. When the civil liberty for which I devoutly pray really comes again, I can, without hindrance, fall on the bosom of my country and weep with her "for any wrongs we have done." I am now a prisoner on parole. I dare not now ask of her any favor, great or small. I claim only of her good faith, the precious privilege, promised me by her highest agents, to go to my home and be at peace.

So far from my being opposed to the name of "freedmen," as indicating the condition of slaves freed by the war, the chief consolation I have in the result of the war is that slavery is forever abolished, that not only the slaves are, in fact, at last freed from bondage, but that I am freed from them. Long before the war, indeed, I had definitely made up my mind actively to advocate emancipation throughout the South. I had determined, if I could help it, my descendants shall never be subject to the humiliation I have been subject to by the weakness, if not the wickedness of slavery, and while I cannot recognize as lawful and humane the violent and shocking mode in which it has been abolished, yet I accept the fact most heartily as an accomplished one, and am determined not only to abide by it and acquiesce in it, but to strive by all means in my power to make it beneficent to both races and a blessing especially to our country. I unfeignedly rejoice at the fact and am reconciled to many of the worst calamities of the war, because I am now convinced that the war was a special providence of God, unavoidable by the nations at either extreme, to cut loose from us a black idol from which we could not have been separated by any other means than that of fire and blood, sword and sacrifice.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.—The St. Louis Democrat of September 18th says:

We learn that George B. Taylor, President of the Pacific Railroad, is now at the end of the road, between Pleasant Hill and Independence, expecting to have the honor to-morrow of laying the last rail which shall unite St. Louis with Kansas City in bonds of iron. The track was also finished on Saturday save about a quarter of a mile, and the road will therefore be completed before this paper reaches many of our distant subscribers.

The State Printing

For some time past week after week, with a purpose [illegible] apparent [illegible] the State Printer and aggrandize itself the Oregon Statesman has teemed with most malicious charges and the vilest falsehoods relative to the official action of the person who is entrusted with the State printing. The Statesman, whose fundamental and guiding principle is unfairness, could have published the facts in the case just as easy as to [illegible] the [illegible] of the State Printer [illegible] the publication of the laws. [illegible] we shall proceed to set this matter at rest by [illegible] every principal allegation which the Statesman has [illegible] made in the hope of [illegible] the Printer and of misleading the people of the State. [illegible]

No one can regret the delay in the publication of the laws so much as the State Printer [illegible] that the delay [illegible] the fault we propose to show. The facts in the case are briefly stated, and this done, the Printer only asks that the blame may rest where it properly belongs.

We have before stated that last winter the Printer purchased all the paper suitable for the State work that could then be had in San Francisco. [illegible] the first of July last there was not [illegible] paper in that market of a quality to correspond with what had already been obtained. How then is the Printer to be blamed for not procuring paper when at the time he purchased there was not enough to be had in San Francisco to complete the job, and when at no subsequent period until the Secretary of State undertook to purchase the balance, could any more paper be found in the market?

We have said that the Secretary of State agreed to furnish the balance of the paper. The Printer desired him to do so for the reason that, as things then were, the Printer was authorized to receive for the paper no more than the San Francisco price, thus giving him nothing for the use of the money he was obliged to expend. The bill for the paper already purchased was sent to the Secretary by agreement with him. He agreed to draw his warrant for it. But after the bill was sent he found he could not pay it [illegible] and [illegible] forced to put the State to the expense of paying interest. The bill for job work done on the statutes was presented under a like agreement. It was necessary for the Secretary to receive the work from the Printer as fast as done, and pass it into the hands of the binder so that the sheets might be pressed and folded as they were printed. Mr. Seiffort the binder was authorized to receipt for the Secretary, and the latter agreed to audit the Printer's bills as fast as receipted for by the binder.

As soon as the Printer learned that the bill for the paper already bought was not likely to be paid by the Secretary according to agreement, he asked him to purchase the balance of the paper for the State work, which the Secretary on the 9th of June agreed to do. Mr. Cooke, the State Treasurer, being then in San Francisco, was employed by the Secretary to make the purchase. The San Francisco firm, from whom the first lot was bought, closed their business about this time, and but little paper of the quality used was found in the market by Mr. Cooke. What he did obtain, as it afterwards appeared, was part of the same lot already purchased by the State Printer. Mr. Cooke thought the work might perhaps be finished on California made paper, and accordingly he sent samples of it to the Secretary for his inspection. In a conversation with the Secretary, the Printer urged that the paper should be used, as the only difference between it and that already obtained was in the polish on the surface. In quality it seemed quite as good as the other. The binder was also of opinion that it would be quite as well to complete the work with this paper as to send East for more. The Secretary at first was disposed to accede to this proposition, provided the paper could be made in thirty or forty days. But when the State Treasurer returned from San Francisco the Secretary advised with him and concluded that it would not be well to depend on the California Mills at all, but to send direct to the East for the paper. Accordingly on the 25th of July he—the Secretary—wrote to the Printer instructing him to telegraph to New York, through Ladd & Tilton, for paper of the same quality as that already used. This letter reached the Printer on the night of the 26th of July—too late to enable him to send a dispatch by telegraph up that day. On the following morning—the 27th—the telegram was sent according to the Secretary's order. Very unfortunately the overland line was down at that time beyond Salt Lake. All persons remember that by reason of the Indian hostilities communication with the East by telegraph was suspended during the greater part of the past summer. On the 26th of August the overland line was working again for the first time and [illegible] the sending of the dispatch ordering the paper. It was not supposed that the line would be out of repair longer than two or three days at furthest, since our Salt Lake dispatches were continually announcing that it was to be put in order at once. On the 3d of September the State Printer was informed that the order had reached New York. So long however, had it been on the way that the New York house of Ladd & Tilton hesitated to fill the order not knowing whether the paper was still wanted or not. Hence a telegram was sent, making inquiries on this point. The 3d of September was Sunday and no business could be done on that day, but on the 4th an answer was returned renewing the order for the paper. This dispatch it is supposed was received in due time at New York, and the inference is that the paper is on the way. In fact it is now expected by every steamer. Thus it will be seen that the State Printer is not at all chargeable with the delay of which the Statesman chiefly complains. He has used every possible effort to expedite the business. Circumstances over which he could have no control have retarded the printing, and his loss is heavier than that of all other persons can possibly be.

The Statesman, with its accustomed malignant mendacity, says that the Printer "has handed in a little bill of several thousand dollars for printing which has never been delivered to the State, and among other items he charges in the account the Internal Revenue tax which he is compelled to pay the United States on the work done for the State of Oregon—or, in other words he is endeavoring to make the State pay his taxes for the year." Now the fact is that the only bill which was ever presented to the Secretary with the Internal Revenue tax added was the account for printing the Senate Journal March 1st 1865 and for publishing the laws in the [illegible]. This bill was presented after consultation with the U. S. Assessor, who when the matter was first named to him thought that the State was liable for the tax. On a careful examination of the law, he however soon came to a different conclusion. It was decided that neither the State nor the Printer was under obligation to pay any Internal Revenue tax whatever upon the work. After referring the matter to the Bureau at Washington a like decision was rendered in the case of the State [illegible] printed. Had the Printer been considered a contractor with the State for the work he would have been held liable for the tax. But as the State was furnishing the materials and paying him merely for the labor actually performed it was decided that the State had the right to do its printing without being taxed therefor, and that the party whom it employed to do the work was in like manner exempt from taxation as to the printing. Such was the decision of the Assessor, and we may as well add that this statement is made with his knowledge and by his approbation. What then becomes of the Statesman's charges? They simply sink to the despicable level of all slanders and calumnies [illegible]. All its vituperation against the State Printer springs wholly from its own malevolent and envenomed nature, and all its charges of misfeasance against that public officer are just as untrue as the one we have thus exposed.

The Statesman also insinuates that there was enough of paper in the first lot to complete the State work, and that the Printer used a portion of it in printing his own copies. This assertion the Statesman knows to be incorrect. On a close calculation it will require 450 reams in all to do the State work alone. Hence the printing would not have been finished had every quire of the paper already purchased been used for the 3,000 copies which the State needed for its own purposes. But not one quire purchased for the State has been used for any other purpose than the State laws except such quires as were [illegible] upon by the Secretary as being unfit for that purpose and which were to be accounted for by the Printer.

It will not be amiss right here to give the uninitiated if any such there be, a little insight into the secret cause of the Statesman's conduct in the matter. Next year a general election [illegible]. Those connected with the Statesman had an itching for office, and their success in this respect [illegible] closely. The State printing is a very tempting bait for an establishment that is going into [illegible] decline. The only reason why the Statesman takes its present course is to secure the emoluments of that office. The pretence of serving the public which that paper makes, is all moonshine.

Multnomah No. 2.—Will this (Tuesday) evening at 7½ o'clock. Per order

W. T. LEONARD, Sec'y

MARRIED:

At the residence of Louis Sohns, Vancouver W. T., October 12th, 1865, by C. H. Hunder, J. P., I. C. Hendricksen to Johanna Winter, all of Portland, Oregon.

In this city, October 16th, Mr. James Aiken and Miss Samantha C. T. Kelly, daughter of Rev. A. Kelly.

DIED:

In this city, October 14th, Mrs. Frances Dowe, consort of Samuel Dowe, aged 29 years, 1 month and 11 days. Formerly from Wisconsin.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

California News—Speed of Flora Temple Beaten.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—The Spirit of the Times publishes a telegram to the effect that Flora Temple's celebrated time of 2:19¾ was beaten in New York on the 10th inst. by the Hambletonian horse Dexter, who has made quite a stir during the last two years, by his remarkable speed. Dexter made on this occasion the mile in 2:18½, beating Flora Temple's time 1 1-20. The race was trotted on a wager of $5,000 against $10,000 that Dexter would beat the fast time on record.

The same paper says that the owner of Norfolk will run him against any horse on the Pacific coast at four mile heats with 126 pounds on each for $15,000 a side, on any day except Sunday, in May next.

John S. Day and Lovell, comprising the firm of John S. Day & Co., filed their petition of insolvency to-day. Their liabilities are $28,502 each. Assets about $20,000 each.

Henry Schrader and John Gunter were arrested this morning on suspicion of larceny on board the ship Leona.

The Democrats meet to-night at Platt's Hall for the purpose of ratifying the nominations made by the party of candidates for the coming election of judicial officers.

Montaine Forest, lately acting as French consul at this port, has been appointed consul of France at Mazatlan.

According to the figuring of the clerk of the Louisiana there were on board the steamer at the time of the explosion 168 cabin passengers and [illegible] steerage, making [illegible] in all. The officers and crew numbered [illegible].

Companies A, B, of the 8th Infantry California Volunteers, and two companies of the 9th Infantry, (Regulars) arrived here on the Sierra Nevada yesterday, and are now at the Presidio.

Markets.

Coin drafts on the Atlantic cities are quoted at 1½ per cent premium, and currency drafts at ¾ per cent premium in gold. Latest gold quotation is 144½ in New York on the 13th instant. Legal Tenders 72@72½.

Butter—further sales of 100 firkins, choice N. Y. State, at 12½ cents. Candles—sale of 1,400 boxes, quarters, sold at a private dispatch from New York. Quote an advance in adamantine candles to 35 cents. Oregon patch, $8 50. Starch—the agent of Kingsford's has advanced the price to 12½ cents, silver gloss to 13½ cents, and corn to 14 cents. Sugar—sales of 200 bbls of Bay refinery, circle A crushed, at 18¼ cents cash. Syrup—300 kegs of Bay refinery sold at 77½ cents. Flour—a steady market with a fair demand, sales at $6 75 per bbl, in quarter sacks for extra fine; one or two favorite brands, at $7 00 and $6 50 for superfine, with usual reduction in half sacks. Wheat—the market is scarcely so firm and $2 00 per 100 lbs is difficult to be obtained for the best samples; sales of 1,500 sks No. 1, $2 1 16½; do to day at $1 97½@1 98, and 1,000 do at $1 [illegible]. Barley—sales 2,000 sks choice brewing at 1 02½, 141 do at $1 00, 1,480 do, feed, [illegible] 500 gunnies poor coast at 90c ⅌ 100 lbs. Oats—sales 900 sks at $1 12½@1 50 ⅌ 100 lbs for fair to prime. New York Gold Quotations [illegible]

[illegible] OF POLICY.—It is [illegible] by some [illegible] to see the rates of travel and transportation [illegible] to a reasonable sum between San Francisco [illegible] Portland, is questionable policy. And we [illegible] there are a few persons who [illegible] dictated by the Oregon Steam Navigation [illegible] they being—it is asserted [illegible] make anything from the reduction [illegible] charge [illegible] possessor of no stock in that [illegible] or control on [illegible] Whatever [illegible] made in their [illegible] from deserving [illegible] for the stupendous enterprises [illegible] they have made for the benefit [illegible] the whole of Washington [illegible] would gain by the reduction [illegible] people would be benefitted [illegible] that we believe to be correct [illegible] the sake [illegible] out of their hands [illegible] to say that there [illegible] Portland except such as [illegible] [illegible] that are by any comparison [illegible] get along with [illegible] [illegible] that it can do no harm to allude to [illegible] said that cheap transportation [illegible] and that Portland would be passed by [illegible] dealer, who would take up with the facilities [illegible] buy his goods, wares and merchandise [illegible] market. As to the first proposition we think [illegible] position on the Sacramento river [illegible] of Sacramento city. Among dealers it is [illegible] for cheap rates of transportation [illegible] and the death of the [illegible] golden eggs must [illegible] which would be so cruelly [illegible] poverty of thousands of [illegible] strated that high freight [illegible] That they are at present [illegible] their gross earnings [illegible] and we happen to know better [illegible] the majority of Portland merchants [illegible] short-sighted as to [illegible] high tariffs in the [illegible] city and California they would be [illegible] The policy of San Francisco [illegible] with the interior of California [illegible] the people with whom [illegible] of gain, should most [illegible] in this matter. We [illegible] in all projects that [illegible] of the commonwealth [illegible] as they should with the merchants of the [illegible] a sovereign of the [illegible] as a little [illegible] be just as likely to [illegible] their purchases with passage [illegible] they would, were it continually [illegible] dealt with. Competition in trade [illegible] and competition in ocean travel [illegible] now for the health of Oregon. Another [illegible] to be taken into consideration on the [illegible] our merchants who import direct [illegible] and foreign merchants. There [illegible] as yet, in Oregon to return vessels freighted [illegible] with full cargoes. [illegible] to receive the imported articles of [illegible] When there, and trans shipped, the [illegible] to Portland is greater than the [illegible] by considerable in the [illegible] freights.

[illegible]—One day last week [illegible] reached Portland by the Cascades steamer [illegible] met upon the street a former partner [illegible] stein. They became [illegible] their financial transactions during which [illegible] that which camped at [illegible] they slept together in a corral. At day [illegible] got up and went [illegible] water their [illegible] Silverstein, who was [illegible] their [illegible] asked Hart what had become of his [illegible] told him he knew nothing about them [illegible] accused Hart of stealing the money [illegible] Hart denied the charge and finally found the [illegible] on the outside of the corral, almost [illegible] were jointly interested. Matters were finally [illegible] arranged between them, and by selling their [illegible] wagon, they divided and made [illegible] derived from the sale, when Silverstein left [illegible] Hart has since thought [illegible] know where the [illegible] from the pantaloons, and followed him [illegible] The upshot of the matter was that the parties [illegible] in a suit at law. Silverstein was [illegible] bag of dust was found and identified [illegible] money Hart replevied his half and the [illegible] was left as a [illegible] for Silverstein's appearance [illegible] term of the Circuit Court on a charge [illegible]

[illegible] COURT.—Since our last report of [illegible] Hoffman the following cases [illegible] the arrest book:—S. O. Styles, drunk and [illegible] paid a fine of $5 and costs; Ed Bates, ditto, [illegible] "wherewith to liquidate" sent to jail [illegible] Thomas ditto, ditto. An old offender [illegible] not having appeared since July last [illegible] for indulging in a little game of [illegible] and drawn a "spade" on [illegible] Lockman [illegible] to pay $5 and costs. Lockman for drawing a [illegible] Mitchell, to make a pretty game of it, [illegible] and the city won. Ya Long, for having [illegible] by acting disorderly in the store of [illegible] Wolf [illegible] and costs. John Clark d. d., $5 and [illegible] Martin, assault and battery committed upon [illegible] fined $100 and costs, and in default was [illegible] jail for 50 days. A similar case will be in [illegible] day. James Mitchell charged with selling [illegible] quality of flour to Indians, causing sick [illegible] them, plead not guilty, but was held over [illegible] $100 for his appearance to day.

[illegible].—On last Saturday we were shown [illegible] giving the most encouraging reports [illegible] mines on the upper Columbia. The cloud [illegible] held over Colville valley, suddenly broke [illegible] appearance there on the 27th of September [illegible] returned with evidences of the richness of [illegible] which they had spent the summer. They [illegible] heard from for many months and the [illegible] or rather no reports at all, was severe for [illegible] of the country. The party, however [illegible] they report fabulous yields to the pan or [illegible] from the bottom of shafts, showing a richness [illegible] Silver ledges, veins of lead, copper [illegible] have been found in abundance.

THE VALLEY RAILROAD.—In our [illegible] the subject of a valley railroad on the [illegible] to an extract written by Judge [illegible] and published in the prospectus of the [illegible] Railroad Company. It was not our [illegible] Judge Chenoweth, and we will [illegible] the benefit of a correction. In calling [illegible] to the fact that we had committed an error [illegible] "I have ever felt a deep interest [illegible] woods in this valley and would not [illegible] like to any town or locality. The [illegible] by him to prove that this city is not a suit[illegible] for a railroad may be considered logical [illegible] of this itself should have been quoted.

District Attorney Hodgkins [illegible] and Judge [illegible] morning started for Hillsboro with [illegible] but before getting out of the city some [illegible] gave way which frightened the [illegible] off, smashing the buggy up pretty badly [illegible] Wait so that he was obliged to stop [illegible] was slightly injured, but [illegible] not his making the trip and promising [illegible] another effort.

We were pleased to receive a call from [illegible] Ferrall, of Company D, Oregon Infantry. The Captain comes from Camp Lyon about [illegible] from Fort Boise. He is looking quite well [illegible] the command in excellent spirits [illegible] for efficient service at all times.

[illegible] new "Burg" is in a flourishing [illegible] barrel works lately established there are [illegible] barrels daily. Machinery is soon to be [illegible] works for the manufacture of whiskey [illegible] and salmon barrels. The quality of the [illegible] par.

[illegible] OCEAN.—Dr. Plummer and Mr. Whitney [illegible] Company were fishing for the cable in [illegible] opposite this city yesterday. It having [illegible] the electric current to the eastern [illegible] failed to find Neptune [illegible] any mermaid.

THE TAX CASE.—Judge Risdon has received a [illegible] from Senator Williams, announcing that he will act as counsel for Lane county in the tax [illegible] in the Supreme Court of the United States. The case is this: Lane county tendered [illegible] of the State tax for the year 1864 in [illegible] which the State authorities refused [illegible] brought suit against the county to en[illegible] payment in coin. The Circuit Court decided [illegible] of the State, whereupon an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of Oregon, which [illegible] judgment of the Circuit Court. The [illegible] now appeals to the Supreme Court of the [illegible] and has employed Judge Williams [illegible] to the case.—State Journal.

FROM THE JOHN DAY COUNTRY.—The Walla Walla [illegible] of Tuesday last we [illegible] flat papers from [illegible] young districts in Idaho and Washington Territories. The Walla Walla Statesman of the 13th has the following:

[illegible]

A gentleman arrived here this week from Black[illegible] who while [illegible] the Court [illegible] mates [illegible] two [illegible] quartz ledges [illegible] some [illegible] fifty miles beyond the [illegible] He picked up [illegible] rock [illegible] with a [illegible] brought them down and had them as[illegible] The [illegible] the rate [illegible] and the [illegible] at $1,100. He [illegible] to the [illegible] Mr. W. W. [illegible] has [illegible] in that country for the past [illegible] weeks prospecting [illegible] seems probable that we are [illegible] to have rich quartz [illegible]

[illegible] Walla Walla [illegible] the [illegible] that [illegible] the farmers [illegible] had the [illegible] enough to have any. It is [illegible] that [illegible] when it [illegible] market. Farmers [illegible] to sell and put the [illegible] supplies of lard and bacon.

Although the advice of every one now who comes down from the Blackfoot country is "don't go there at this season of the year," still there are parties packing up and starting out for the diggings every day. They argue that they [illegible] the mountains now much easier than they can in the spring. This is probably the [illegible] Parties who have arrived from the mines this week report that there [illegible] inches of snow in the [illegible]

The town of Florence, which was three years [illegible] one of the most populous places in the upper country, is said to be sharing the same fate that [illegible] has by the few remaining residents [illegible] appropriating the unoccupied houses for fire wood.

From the Mountaineer of yesterday we glean the following:

There has been a considerable degree of activity in some branches of trade during the past week caused by the demand for winter supplies at Canyon City and Boise. The demand for transportation to Boise directly overland has been fully met notwithstanding the fact that the Government is offering contracts for the transportation of a large amount of supplies to the posts in the south eastern part of the State.

Evidences of the richness of the mines on [illegible] creek, a tributary of the Middle Fork of John Day, have been exhibited in this place in the shape of pieces weighing as much as $9, valuing it at $10 an ounce. It stands to reason that where pieces of gold of this size are found there must be plenty more of the same kind. There is a vast district across the heads of John Day's river that only needs population and development to enrich all who stake their chances upon it. Another season must bring a large increase of mining population to that country. Coarse gold and plenty of it speaks more eloquently for a mining district than all that can be said in its favor.

We are in a position to state that arrangements are now being made to stock the road, by the way of Canyon City, to Boise, and that another year will see a fast freight and stage line in operation from the Dalles to Boise City, with a branch diverging to Owyhee.

Some miners who have recently been digging in the diggings on Rock Creek, sixty miles this side of Canyon City, speak confidently of obtaining a fair remuneration for their labor.

A shooting affray at Idaho City on the 9th inst., between Richard Ralston and John [illegible] resulted in Ralston being severely wounded in the leg. Several shots were fired by both parties.

A dreadful disaster occurred on Lake Huron on the evening of the 9th ult. The steamboats Pewabic and Meteor, both running at full speed, the former going southward and the latter northward, collided with a fearful crash. The Pewabic was struck on her port bow just aft the pilot house and sank in three or four minutes. At the time the accident occurred it was scarcely dark and the boats saw each other six miles apart. When approaching they exchanged signals, and the Pewabic bore off to pass, but the Meteor from some unexplained reasons turned in the same direction and struck the Pewabic. A number of the passengers on board the Pewabic were killed by the crushing of her timbers. A few jumped on board the Meteor before the Pewabic sunk. Lifeboats were immediately lowered from the Meteor and picked up those who were not carried down with the wreck. One hundred and seventy five to two hundred passengers were on board the Pewabic at the time of the disaster. Seventy five of the passengers and twenty three of the crew were drowned. The loss of life cannot be correctly ascertained as yet, but it will be near one hundred.

History of the Niagara Peace Conference

[From Mr Raymond's Life of Abraham Lincoln]

(Concluded from yesterday)

RAYMOND'S COMMENTS

The biographer comments as follows on these negotiations

In their note of July 20th to Mr Jewett inclosing their final letter to Mr Greeley the rebel commissaries acknowledge the assurance received from Mr Jewett that Mr Greeley regrets the sad termination of the initiatory steps taken for peace in consequence of the change made by the President in his instructions to convey Commissioners to Washington for negotiations unconditionally. The Commissioners must have misunderstood Mr Jewett, or Mr Jewett must have misrepresented Mr Greeley, in this report of the ground of his "regrets" or else Mr Greeley must have taken a position quite at variance with the facts of the case. Mr Greeley could scarcely have believed the President had changed his instructions in the least degree, and he must have known that the result of the attempted negotiation was due to a wholly different cause.

The first response made by the President to Mr Greeley's urgent entreaty that Peace Commissioners should be received, was dated July 7th, and said:

If you can find any person professing to have any proposition of Jefferson Davis in writing for peace, embracing the restoration of the Union and abandonment of slavery whatever else it embraces, say to him that he may come to me.

At the very outset therefore, the President distinctly specified the condition on which he would receive the pretended Commissioners they must bring written propositions for peace from Davis and those propositions must embrace two of the things which Mr Greeley himself had suggested the restoration of the Union and the abandonment of slavery. So far as appears, Mr Greeley neither showed this letter of the President to the pretended agents of the rebel government nor did he inform them in any way of the conditions on which alone they could be received. But in his letters of July 10th and 13th to the President without making any reference to these conditions he reiterates his pressing entreaty that the negotiations may be encouraged, and that the rebel agents may be received at Washington. To this the President replied, expressing his disappointment that the Commissioners had not already arrived and saying "If they would consent to come, on being shown my letter to you of the 9th inst, [in which the conditions of their coming were distinctly stated] show that and this to them and if they will come on the terms stated in the former, bring them."

Notwithstanding these explicit and peremptory instructions, it does not appear that Mr Greeley gave the rebel agents any information whatever as to the "terms" of their being received, nor did he show them either of the President's two letters in which those terms were stated. But he proceeded to make arrangements for this visit to Washington, and went to Niagara Falls to bear them company. There he addressed them a letter on the 17th of July, stating that, if it was true, as he had been informed, that they were duly accredited from Richmond as the bearers of propositions looking to the establishment of peace, and in the fulfillment of their mission, he was "particularized by the President of the United States to tender them his safe conduct on the journey proposed." Mr. Greeley was not authorized to tender these agents a safe conduct to Washington on any such terms, but only on certain other conditions which he concealed from the agents, and of which he took no notice whatever, either in his correspondence with them or with the President. Their reply to him, however, corrected his impression that they were "duly accredited" from Richmond to negotiate for peace. They had no authority of the kind, but expressed the belief that they could get it, and upon this presumption renewed their solicitations for a safe conduct to Washington. On the 18th Mr Greeley wrote to the President, communicating that information, but still making no allusion whatever to the conditions imposed upon their being received.

The President, meantime, not understanding the cause of delay in their arrivals, sent Major Hay, his private secretary, to communicate directly with "any persons" professing to have authority from Davis to treat for peace, and so inform them, as he had twice before instructed Mr. Greeley to inform them, that any proposition for peace, in order to be received and considered by him, must embrace "the restoration of peace the integrity of the whole Union, and the abandonment of slavery." These instructions were embodied in the letter addressed "to whom it may concern"—and were delivered by Major Hay in person to the rebel agents. It was the first they had ever heard of any "conditions," as they had been informed by Mr Greeley that he was instructed by the President to tender them safe conduct to Washington, without any mention of conditions—they were of course taken by surprise, and naturally enough attributed to the President the "sudden and entire change of views" with which they reproached him in their letter to Mr Greeley of July 21st. And, strangely enough, even after receiving this letter, and being thus apprised of the charge brought against the President, Mr. Greeley not only failed to relieve him from it by making public the fact but joined in ascribing to Mr. Lincoln the failure in negotiations for peace, and the consequent precipitation of the war. And, according to Mr Jewett's statement, Mr Greeley also authorised him to express to the rebel commissioners his regrets that the negotiation should have failed in consequence of the President's "change of views."

It is not easy now, any more than it was then, to reconcile Mr. Greeley's action in this matter with fidelity to the Union cause, or with good faith to the Administration, by which alone that cause was maintained. The opposition press made Mr. Lincoln's alleged tergiversation the ground of fresh and vehement attack, while it was used throughout the rebel States as fresh proof of the faithless character of the Federal Government, and of the absolute impossibility of making peace except by successful war. The Commissioners themselves made a very adroit use of the advantage which Mr Greeley's extraordinary course had placed in their hands, and in their letter of July 21st, addressed to him, but meant to be a public impeachment of President Lincoln's honor and good faith, made a powerful and effective appeal to the indignant pride of the Southern people and the sympathy of their friends in the Northern States.

The President felt very sensibly the injustice done to himself, and the injury done the country by Mr. Greeley's suppression of the most essential facts, in his intercourse with the rebel commissioners. As the only mode of placing the whole subject properly before the people, he applied to Mr. Greeley for permission to publish the whole correspondence—omitting only certain passages not at all essential to a full understanding of the subject, and likely seriously to injure the Union cause by infusing into the public mind something of the despondency which Mr Greely himself felt and openly avowed, concerning the prospects of the country. The words which Mr Lincoln desired to have omitted in the publication of the correspondence, were the following. In the letter of July 7th.

In the second paragraph, the words "and therefore I venture to remind you that our bleeding bankrupt, almost dying country also longs for peace, shudders at the prospect of fresh conscriptions, of further wholesale devastations, and of new rivers of human blood," and, also the words "now, and is morally certain, unless removed, to do far greater in the approaching elections."

In the fourth paragraph, the words "if only with a view to the momentous election soon to occur in North Carolina; and of the draft to be enforced in the Free States, this should be done."

In the last paragraph the words "it may save us from a Northern insurrection."

In the letter of July 13th, second paragraph the words "in season for effect on the approaching North Carolina election," and in the last paragraph, the words "especially those of North Carolina."

And in the letter of July 13th, last paragraph the words "that a good influence may even yet be exerted on the North Carolina election next month."

Mr Greeley declined to give his assent to the publication of the correspondence unless these phrases should be published also. The President accordingly submitted in silence to the injustice which had been done him, and committed the whole subject, in the following letter to the judgment of a personal and political friend.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Aug 15th 1864

Hon. Henry J. Raymond—DEAR SIR. I have proposed to Mr Greeley that the Niagara correspondence be published, suppressing the parts of the letters over which the red pencil is drawn in the copy which I herewith send. He declines giving his consent to the publication of his letters unless these parts be published with the rest. I have concluded that it is better for me to submit for the time to the consequences of the false position in which I consider he has placed me, than to subject the country to the consequences of publishing these discouraging and injurious parts. I send you this and the accompanying copy not for publication but merely to explain to you, and that you may preserve them until their proper time shall come. Yours truly

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

This public statement of the facts of this case is demanded by the author due to the memory of Mr Lincoln. He has been widely censured for entering into communication with rebel agents at all but this correspondence shows that Mr Greeley's assurances and his pressing entreaties had made it necessary for him either to open the way for negotiations or reject the opportunity which one of the most influential leaders of his own party thus assured him was offered, for an honorable termination of the war. He was charged with having finally insisted on certain concessions as the basis of an interview after having first promised it unconditionally but this correspondence shows that those conditions were distinctly stated at the very outset that were withheld by Mr Greeley from the knowledge of the rebel commissioners. It is due to justice, as well as to Mr Lincoln, that impressions so injurious and so false should no longer prevail.

GREELEY'S REPLY TO RAYMOND

H. G. makes reply in the New York Tribune of the 11th of August to that portion of Raymond's biography of President Lincoln which relates to the Niagara Falls Peace Conference. The following is the concluding and material portion of the reply.

Mr Raymond says that I declined to give my assent to the publication of my private correspondence with President Lincoln, until he should suppress [illegible] of them in his letters. But all of them [illegible]. Now I like a little of reasonable size as well as any body, but really the Himalaya of iniquity, the Arctic Circle of congelation involved in the proposition that my private papers should be printed in a garbled form in order to put me in the wrong and some one else in the right [illegible]. I said Print my private letters entire if you choose, but print them as I wrote them, not as it may suit your exigency to edit and modify them. It serves Mr R's purpose to say that the changes proposed were "not at all essential," but they were. Every one of my letters had urged the fact that a most important election was pending in North Carolina wherein the Holden or anti-Davis peace party would be greatly helped by any manifestation by our government of an anxious desire for peace on terms that the South ought to accept—and each of these allusions were among portions of my letters which I was required to concur in suppressing. It was not just, that I should be asked to do this. And, as the President had entire control over his own letters, and was at perfect liberty to print them, and as the point made against me rested entirely on these and not at all on mine, I cannot yet see why they might not have been printed and mine left in the shade.

Mr Raymond assumes, throughout, that President Lincoln had definitely resolved before hand and that he insisted throughout that no overtures for peace from the rebels should be entertained or acted on by him unless as a preliminary, they should assent to a restoration of the Union and the abolition of slavery. He seems to have forgotten that six months afterwards, when the victories of Sherman, Sheridan and Thomas had put a very different and brighter aspect on our affairs that that same President did respond to an overture from the Confederates wherein no such preliminary conditions were exacted or submitted to, and did go himself more than half way to meet the rebel Commissioners in Hampton Roads and there treat and fully discuss with them the conditions of peace. I consider this the wisest and greatest act of his life. I am confident that it hastened the final and utter collapse of the Confederacy and it was exactly such a negotiation as I tried to initiate at Niagara, and a complete square back down from Mr Lincoln's position in my case, if Mr. Raymond's hypothesis is correct. Had this wise and brave course been taken when Alex H. Stephens first publicly solicited permission to visit Washington, I believe it would have saved a quarter of a million of precious lives, an awful amount of devastation and misery, and left our National Debt a full billion less than it is to day.

Mr Raymond closes with a statement that "the effect of this attempt at negotiation was, for the moment, unfavorable to the Union cause." Why? Manifestly, because it was generally felt that an adequate desire for pacification had not been evinced on our part. Mr Lincoln's "To Whom it May Concern" may have been proper and timely but the public did not think so. It was very widely felt that the rebels should have been allowed to make their offer and that this, if unacceptable should have provoked a better from our side. After three years of sanguinary, devastating war, it was high time at least to hear any proposition that either party chose to make. And it was not possible that our side should lose by such a course. If the rebels offered to return to the Union on any terms, they blasted their hopes of foreign recognition and aid; if they said "No peace without independence," they strengthened us immensely at home. This was proved by the visit of Jaques and Gilmore to Richmond soon afterwards whom Davis' ultimatum of independence or war proved immensely serviceable to the national cause alike in the prosecution of the war and in the Presidential contest. And this or something better might have been secured at Niagara but for counsels which I must still consider mistaken and unwise

H G

WHAT MAKES A HORSE VICIOUS.—There is no disguising the fact that viciousness is innate with some horses. It is no doubt sometimes hereditary and follows some of the best strains of blood we have. That viciousness should accompany a highly nervous organization is not to be wondered at. Hence it causes no surprise when we find such dispositions among the finely organized thoroughbreds—animals of a most sensitive and nervous organization, from which the common expression "thin skinned," as applied to a too sensitive man, is obviously derived. The treatment horses receive, and the moral atmosphere in which they are thrown have a much greater influence than most horsemen are generally inclined to admit. The punching, tickling, boisterous stable boy, who annoys a spirited horse for the sake of enjoying his futile though almost frantic kicks and leers, is affecting the disposition of the horse and his descendants for generations to come besides putting in jeopardy the lives and limbs of those who are brought in contact with the horse so tampered with. A horse is surely influenced by the psychological character of the man with whom he associates. A passionate man will have a baulky horse, a slow plodding brother one of his own style and so the nervous quick, fussy man's horse will show the same qualities. So noticeable is this, that we have often remarked that the family horses of our neighbors as they are changed one after another very soon fall into the very gait and style of their predecessors in the very same stables. Were rules similar to the ones which Herbert quotes followed by all English horse breakers, from the time of Queen Bess down it would indeed be a wonder if a good natured horse could be found in the kingdom. The rule of R. Norfolk horse trainer of Queen Elizabeth's time reads as follows:

"If your horse does not stand still or hesitate, then drub him with a terrible voice and beat him yourself with a good stick upon the head between the ears; then stick him in the spur in one place iii or iv times together with one legge after another as fast as your legges might walk: your legges must go like two bouncing beetles."

This is too much the English and Irish style of horse breaking. The groom or horse trainer gets angry at the horse, kicks, cuffs, and bangs a horse until they make him as angry as himself and so spoil his temper for life. We have no doubt the dislike to [illegible] so common in English horses may be chiefly attributed to this cause. On the continent of Europe there are large numbers of English horses thoroughbreds kept and bred pure for the sake of crossing with their heavier breeds, and producing large but not so graceful and spirited carriage horses for the more aristocratic nobility. Whoever has been through these studs must have noticed how free almost all the horses even the stallions appeared to be from anything like viciousness. The same thing is seen in the Southern States where thoroughbred horses are much more common than with us at the North. The gentle handling of the negro has wrought a change in the disposition of the horse, while his spirit is pluck and the strong nervous of his organization remain unmarked. [illegible] It is especially a severe treatment by pain and terror to break the spirit of a horse, and to punish him for his spirit [illegible] will never make him [illegible] rather will add treachery to his vice [illegible] traits [illegible] natural to him. If these qualities are [illegible] cultivated [illegible] will [illegible] other treatment. [illegible] to [illegible] on your [illegible] horse, and if possible to [illegible] or change [illegible] which [illegible] No [illegible] need undertake this task [illegible] will [illegible] make matters worse. [illegible] the horse will know it [illegible] should be quiet for then the horse will be put off his guard he should be [illegible] the brute [illegible] doing anything and [illegible] exactly what the [illegible] wants [illegible]. Thus any ordinary horse will soon give up and own man his master. The kindest treatment and even petting, must always follow yielding and it is possible to help it the horse should never be frightened by any treatment and above all things, he should not be angered by petty torture. His own contrariness should appear to him to be the cause of all his trouble and man his best friend. This principle is at the foundation of Rarey's successful practice [illegible] for February, 1861.

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle
